FOR AGRICULTURE

Today's Sessions of the Association of Experts.

SCHOOL FOR GRADUATES

Much Discussion on Proposition to Change Name.

MORE DELEGATES

Today's sessions of the Association of American Agricultural Colleges and Experiment Stations gave promise from the program to be the most interesting of the current convention. In the morning the delegates provided for a graduate summer school of agriculture, and considered, with a view to amendment, various important provisions of the constitution. Section meetings on many subjects are being held this afternoon. This evening reports are to be received from the nine standing committees of the association, a statement will be made of the graduate study conducted here in Washington, and the Secretary of Agriculture and Miss Wilson will receive the delegates socially.

In the morning the attendance was very large, and interest in the debates was continuous. The revision of the constitution was undertaken with marked personal attention from the delegates. As the discussion continued, however, it became manifest almost no change could be made in the original constitution. Every amend-ment proposed brought forth half a dozen substitutes and evoked so much debate that the convention in many instances gladly placed the matter on the table as the only means of escape.

A School of Graduate Study. With the development of agriculture as a science has come recently a movement for a school of graduate study. Last year the executive committee of the association was empowered to prepare a scheme for such an institution and entered on that task with the co-operation of the Ohio State University. The matter came before the convention this morning on report from the executive committee, which reviewed the history of the movement and recommended the establishment of the school on a plan proposed by President W. D. Thomp-son of the Ohio University. At the New Haven meeting of the American Association in November, 1901. Dr. Thompson presented to the convention an outline of the plan for the graduate sum-mer school of agriculture, of which the following is a brief abstract:

"The board of trustees stand ready to firance a graduate summer school of agri-culture for its initial session to take place in the summer of 1902 and to furnish necessary buildings and equipment. Another institution has given assurance that it will be glad to do the same for the succeeding

The purpose of this school is to present to graduate students, including instructors and investigators, the latest results of higher research relating to agriculture and to discuss the best methods of education and research in agriculture and related sub-

"The program of each session will be determined by the faculty selected to conduct the program subject to the approval of the faculty of the institution in which the session is held. To show the scope of the enterprise, however, it is suggested that the first session shall be four weeks, gested there has been some growth and widening of the idea and it is thought that possibly courses along two or three lines as, for example, zootechny, agronomy and dairying, may be offered at the same time. The executive committee recommended this morning that the association approve the suggestion of the Ohio State University, accept its offer to furnish the necessary buildings and equipment, and assume the financial responsibility for the session. The committee recommended also that if the success of this session should justify the centinuation of such a summer school it be assumed as a co-operative enterprise under the control of the association.

Dr. True, Director. In the course of the discussion the following statement was made on behalf of the Ohio University: "The general plan of the Graduate Summer School of Agriculture having received the approval of the executive committee, the Ohio State University has undertaken to start the enterprise by the selection of a dean or director. The tender of this position has been made to Dr. A. C. True, director of the office of experiment stations, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C. Mr. James Wilson, Secretary of Agriculture, has been consulted, and has expressed his most cordial approval and sympathy with the enterprise, with the result that Dr. True has consented to accept the position of dean, providing the leading educators of the United States and Canada in the lines indicated can be secured to give the courses of lectures or conduct laboratory or demonstration work. The Ohio State University does not desire to proceed with this enterprise unless there is a demand for it, which it believes there is, and unless it is assured that it is possible to make it a summer school of the highest grade. Whether it goes on with the work or whether it drops it will de-pend upon the encouragement it gets from those invited to give the instruction."

On that statement of the case the convention voted to enjoin the executive committee to proceed with the organization of

No Change of Name. A proposition to change the present name of the association soon grew into a discussion of the whole purpose of the organization. Representatives of the experiment stations objected to any change of name which affected the equal relationship of colleges and stations. Several of the colcolleges and stations. Several of the college presidents, speaking in reply, insisted that the present name was an anomalous as a reference to "the United States and the state of New York." Before half a dozen men had spoken the delegates from the stations were pleading feelingly that they be not ejected from the convention, and college presidents were profesting that no such purpose was contemplated. The one change of name was amended into six different forms. Finally a vote was had, with a general sign of relief that an the names offered be laid on the table. With a unanimous vote in favor of all the With a unanimous vote in favor of all the few amendments approved singly the morning session came to an end.

More Delegates.

In The Star of yesterday appeared a list of the college presidents attending the convention. The following is the roll of the other delegates, all of them officers of experiment stations: Prof. B. T. Galloway, United States Department of Agriculture: Dr. A. L. True, office of experiment stations; Prof. L. A. Kolbuch, bureau of education; Director R. L. Bennett, Arkansas; Director L. G. President Harris' Annual Report. A report from the section on mechanic arts and the annual address of Presider Harris occupied the convention at last night's session President J. K. Patterson of the Kentucky State College of Agriof the Kentucky State College of Agriculture, presided during the evening.

Dr. Harris report included a brief review of the history of state colleges and other institutions devoted to instruction in agriculture. The development of agricultural colleges was traced from the enactment of the congressional land-grant act of 1862. Before the coming of the state college, he said, the farmer and mechanic shared an anomalous positin in the eye of the thinking public. Today farming is a science; the study of soils has helped the agriculturist to outstrip the mechanic, and agriculturist to outstrip the mechanic, and agriculture has developed into a dignified profession. That progress could be traced to a very small beginning—a few institutions of technology, when electrical engineering was undeveloped, mining engineering in its infancy and civic engineering taught through association with an engineer little better informed than a language of the state of the party of the par gineering in its infancy and civic engineering taught through association with an engineer little better informed than a laborer. To the late Senator Morrill, he said, was due the enactment of the land-grant act—a measure which provided today for 25,000 students, furnished employment and fields of labor for 3,000 teachers in 600 college buildings, all of whom were occupied in institutions with a stated income of $51,000,000, and endowments which raised that sum to $130,000,000.

that sum to $130,000,000.

On motion of Dr. Atherton of Massachusetts the association formally thanked Dr. Harris for his address, and a resolution was adopted wherein the Secretary of Agriculture was requested to print the address as a separate document designed for the as a separate document designed for the use of students in agricultural colleges.

Afternoon Session Yesterday. Section meetings made up the afternoon program. Agriculture, chemistry, entomology and the mechanic arts were discussed by the several sections on those subjects at Carroll Institute Hall, addresses being made by Profs. B. T. Galloway of Prof. R. H. Forbes of Arizona, Dr. B. W. Kilgore of North Carolina, Dr. H. J. Wheeler of Rhode Island, Prof. E. B. Voorhees of New Jersey, Prof. Elwood Mead of this city, Dr. W. C. Stubbs of Louisiana, Prof. C. S. Phelps of Connecticut, Prof. W. J. Spillman of Washington and Prof. Wil-lett M. Hayes of Minnesota. College work and horticulture and bot-any were considered by the members of sections on those subjects at the Ebbitt, the speakers being Prof. W. O. Thompson of Ohio, Charles W. Dabney of Tennessee, Dr. W. A. Wise of Wisconsin and Dr. Joseph H. Brigham of this city.

Incidental to this conventin a meeting was also held yesterday of the National Association of State Universities, over which Dr. R. B. Fulton, chancellor of the University of Mississippi, presided. A committee was appointed to confer with a representative committee from the other convention

A MASONIC VISITATION

INTERESTING EXERCISES AT FED-ERAL LODGE, NO. 1.

Charles Emory Smith, Postmaster General of the United States, was the principal speaker at the exercises attending the annual visitation of the grand master and officers of the Grand Lodge to Federal Lodge, No. 1, F. and A. M., at the Masonic Temple last evening. There was the customary inspection preceding the program, which included music and speeches. The hall was artistically decorated. When the officers of the Grand Lodge marched into the room to the music of the orchestra the audience welcomed them standing.

Mr. Francis Nye, worshipful master of Federal Lodge, delivered the address of welcome, which was responded to by Mr. Harry Standiford, most worshipful grand master. The latter said that the constitution of the Masonic order required the grand master and officers to visit lodges for inspection and to gensure where they might a.m., be devoted to stock judging; from to say that there was no ground for fault finding. He congratulated Federal Lodge p.m., to soil physics. It is expected that a on the good record it had made during number of instructors would take part in the year and expressed hope for its congiving instruction in each of the lines in-

Postmaster General Smith.

After a vocal solo by Mrs. Nellie Wilson Shir-Cliff, the Postmaster General was introduced. Mr. Smith congratulated the lodge on the brilliant occasion, which he had found to be much more brilliant than he had anticipated. He regretted that he had not words fitting and worthy such a gathering, but he had been deeply absorbed in the preparation of a piece of light literature and thrilling fiction known as "Pub. Doc. No. 5," or the Postmaster General's annual report, and was unable to prepare a speech. He asked his hearers to accept the spontaneous expressions as they might spring to his lips under the occasion. He spring to his lips under the occasion. He had found time just before coming to the temple to run over a history placed in his hands of Federal Lodge, and had been deeply impressed by its altogether unique character. The life of the lodge spans the whole existence of the national capital and practically of the government. What a contrast between the little improvised lodge room of 1793 and the present stately temple room of 1793 and the present stately temple.

The first worthy master of the lodge was The first worthy master of the lodge was the supervising architect of the Capitol and of the White House. The lodge participated in the laying of the corner stone of the Capitol, and the speaker had observed that the account rather quaintly says, as the members marched along Pennsylvania avenue, they were compelled to limit themselves to a front of two abreast.

"I assumed, indeed, I knew," the Postmaster General continued, "since Masons constituted such a considerable part of the constituted such a considerable part of the procession, that it was due to the condition procession, that it was due to the condition of the avenue, not to the condition of the marchers. What a contrast with the breadth and grandeur of Pennsylvania avenue now. The life of the lodge covers the whole period during which the conspicuous leaders and statesmen of the republic in the Capitol and in the White House have made their own fame and believe. have made their own fame and built up the nation."

Reference to President McKinley. Mr. Smith pictured some of the leaders who have walked the ways we do now, incauding Alexander Hamilton, Jefferson, the elder Adams, Jackson, Lincoln, Grant and others. He referred to the fact that the lodge had been associated with Washington on public occasions, and had participated in his Masonic funeral at Mt. Vernon, and he could not but associate with that relation to the first President of the republic a similar relation to the late Presiworthy Mason. "We stand yet in the shadow of the awful tragedy at Buffalo," the Postmaster General said in conclusion. "We are perplexed at the mystery of that execrable crime and unfathomable dispensation. It still seems like a cruel and horrid nightmare which must have a given. mare which must pass away. It is hard to realize that that sentie, kindly, loving and lovable spirit will never more be with us except in his undying memories and immorexcept in his undying memories and immortal influence. How gracious and considerate he was in all relations. How tender and thoughtful and sympathetic. How he loved little children and drew them to him. How knightly, chivalric and affectionate in his devotion to the companion of his life. How he smoothed and composed political

How he smoothed and composed political differences. How byshis great policy and his noble example he obliterated sectional feeling. How inestimable his service to the nation and to humanity in being called as he was by an unmistallable Providential overruling to lead the way in a new epoch of national development and greatness and "Washington and McKinley are associated in Masonic memories and in national history. In honoring Masonry we can proudily point to our late revered and beloved chief as the highest embodiment and incarnation of the true Masonic virtues."

A Presentation. Mr. Smith's remarks were well received and elicited great applause. Mr. H. F. Darneille, the District assessor, spoke briefly and presented the Postmaster General with a basket of flowers in the name of Federal Lodge, Mr. J. Walter Humphrey sang a bass solo, after which Mr. Thomas C. Noyes, in a brief but felicitous speech, presented in behalf of the lodge to Most Worshipful Grand Master Harry Standiford a beautiful silver pitcher. Mr. Standiford responded feelingly.

Mrs. William T. Reed sang a song, as did also the Masonic quartet, and the exercises were declared at an end. OF COMMITTEES READ

City Council Holds First of Its November Meetings.

GENERAL AND PERSONAL

Evening Star Bureau. No. 701 King Street. Bell Telephone No. 106.

ALEXANDRIA, Va., November 13, 1901. The city council held the first of two regular November meetings last evening. Thirteen members were present in the lower board, Chairman Frederick Paff presiding. Several intermissions, during which measures were under discussion in the upper board, prolonged the meeting. Most of the business transacted was of a routine nature. Council declined for the time to entertain the petition of the board of police commissioners for the payment of expenses incurred by that body in legal proceedings against the mayor. The petition asked for $500, or as much thereof as might be necessary. On motion of Councilman Johnson the matter was immediately tabled without any discussion.

The first business taken up was the consideration of an ordinance providing for the construction and regulation of public sewers. The ordinance was recommended by the committee on streets and required that the sum of $25 should be paid for tapping sewers for private residences and $75 for tapping for factories, railway stations and other public places. It was unani-mously adopted.

A resolution was offered by Mr. Lead-beater for the appropriation of $350, or as much thereof as may be necessary, for the purchase of vitrified clay pipe to be used in the present street improvements on King street. The matter was adopted without being referred to any committee. A resolution was also adopted for the appropriation of $150 for the construction of a sewer in Peabody alley.

An Alleged Nuisance.

A petition signed by the residents in the neighborhood of the Southern railroad shops, and addressed to the mayor and city council, was read, setting forth that the smoke from locomotives at the shops had become a nuisance in the vicinity since the old round house had been removed. The petitioners asked that something be done to give them relief. It was resolved, upon motion of Mr. Uhler, to refer the communication to Mayor Simpson, who will probably communicate with the officials of the company in regard to the mater. It is said to be the intention of the company to con-struct a new round house in the near fu-

Councilman Brill introduced a resolution providing that only white men be employed to work on the streets under contracts given out by the corporation and that such employes receive not less than $1.25 for nine hour's work. He asked for immediate action, but the resolution was referred to the committee on general laws.

A communication was received from Clerk Hubert Snowden of the city school board calling attention to the expired terms of Messrs. A. H. Thomson, R. P. Atcheson, J. T. Harrison and Col. Francis L. Smith, members of the school board. Mr. Brill introduced a resolution, which was adopted, directing the city engineer to report a plan for the improvement of Washington street from Duke to Oronoco street. esolution offered by Mr. Brill

Report From Committee on Lights. An adverse report was received from the committee on light regarding the petitions for the placing of electric lights at the intersection of King and West streets and Royal and Wilkes streets. The higher board refused to concur and the matter was again taken up by common council and referred to the committee on light. At a joint session of the comomn council and board of aldermen the four members of the school board above mentioned, whose terms had expired, were re-elected for a period of three years each. General Matters.

A small colored boy about fifteen years of age was picked up last night in a helpless condition and carried to the police station. He gave his name as Ben Johnson, and stated that his home is in Newbury, S. C. He was apparently suffering from injured and swollen legs, which made it impossible for him to walk. He had recovered somewhat this morning. The lad stated that he had been enticed away from stated that he had been enticed away from his home by some man on a railroad train, from whom he became separated in Lynchburg. He said he had walked to this city from Monroe, a few miles from Lynchburg. The boy appeared anxious to get back to his home. He will be cared for until his injuries improve.

Miss Lillian Douglas Lucilus and Mr. Henry S. Glauner of Lynchburg were married gesterday afternoon at the home of the bride's father, in Upperville. Rev. I. D. Lake of the Baptist Church of that place performed the ceremony. Miss Mary Dunbar was maid of honor and Mr. P. F. Downey of this city was best man. Mr.

Dunbar was maid of honor and Mr. P. F. Downey of this city was best man. Mr. and Mrs. Glauner left for a wedding tour, after which they will reside in Lynchburg. Both the bride and groom are known in this city.

The Episcopal High School foot ball team will line up this afternoon on the home grounds against the Central High School eleven of Washington. The usual Saturday afternoon game at the High School will not be played this week, as the whole school will go to Georgetown to root for the University of Virginia in the game with Georgetown.

The funeral of Paul Sanborn, son of Mr. Mariott Sanborn of St. Elmo, Alexandria county, took place yesterday afternoon. Interment was made in Bethel cemetery.

Convicted of Stealing Coal. Robert Gray, a colored boy, was in the Police Court this morning to answer a charge of larceny of three pecks of coal from the yard of the Philadelphia, Wilmington and Baltimore Railroad Company, Virginia avenue and South Capitol street. Officer McGrath told Judge Scott that he saw the boy with the coal in a bag last night. Gray denied that he had any coal in his possession. In default of a fine of $5 he will spend fifteen days in jail.
